Safety On The Move[®]

The Raymond Corporation's lift truck operator training program has helped companies protect their people, equipment, and materials since its introduction in 1990. Studies have shown that effective operator training, such as that provided by the Safety On The Move program, can help improve your bottom line.

It can assist you in reducing accidents, work disruptions, and product damage, and increase worker productivity and customer satisfaction.

Now the Safety On The Move program can help you comply with the new Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) requirement that all operators of industrial lift trucks be trained and certified in the use of their equipment before being allowed to operate it as part of their job. Raymond's Safety On The Move program can also assist you in complying with applicable lift truck operator training requirements in Canada and Mexico.

This is the way to go!!

How Safety On The Move Can Help You With Operator Training Meet New OSHA Requirements

As of December 1, 1999 all operators of industrial lift trucks must be trained and certified in the use of their equipment before being allowed to operate it as part of their job. This training must address both the specific type of equipment they will use and the conditions and characteristics unique to their place of work.

The Safety On The Move program is designed to assist you in complying with your duty to ensure that lift truck operators are properly trained. Safety On The Move is a comprehensive, yet modular program that can be presented in terms of your own specific equipment and work site. It can also be customized to fit the needs of new and seasoned operators.

Help Improve Bottom-Line Results

Studies have shown that effective operator training can improve operator safety performance by up to 70 percent. This can help your company achieve better bottom-line results through:

- Fewer accidents and work disruptions
- Decreased product damage and maintenance cost
- Improved worker productivity and customer satisfaction
- Extended equipment life.
